Advanced air bag technology helps protect you in a front-end collision with superb reliability. Gold-plated, corrosion-resistant impact sensors in the vehicle's front end trigger a propellant canister in the steering wheel hub to inflate the air bag. The bag expands fully, cushions you, and deflates in less than a second.

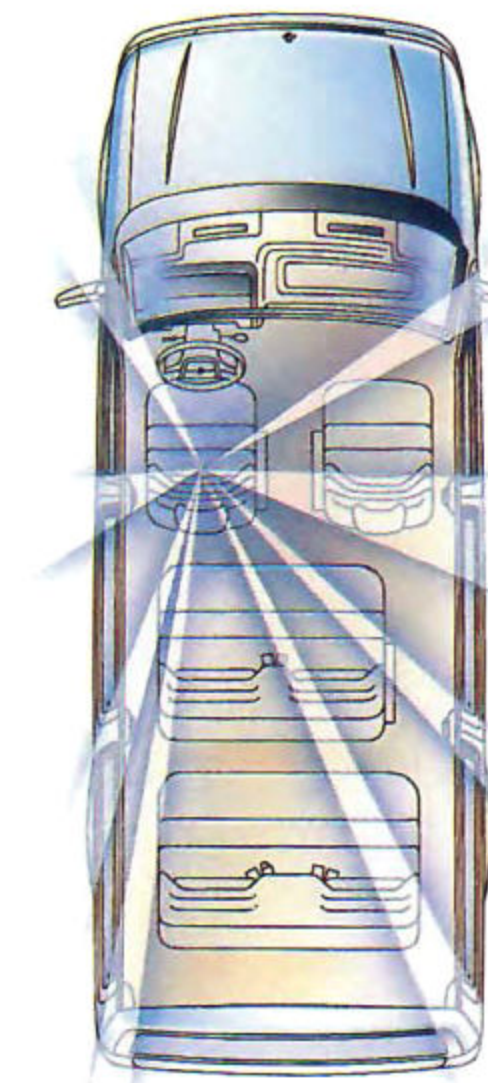

Antilock Braking Systems in Chrysler and Plymouth vehicles use microprocessor-managed electro-hydraulic technology to sense wheel lockup and electronically "pump" brake pressure for added safety and improved steering control during hard braking.

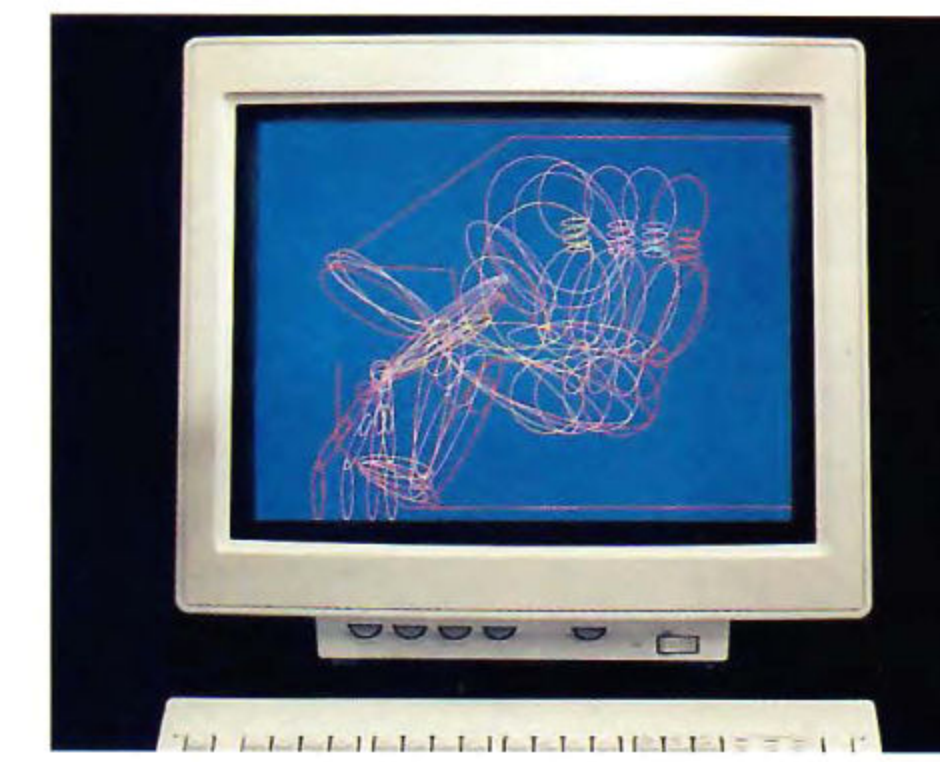

All-Wheel Drive with full-time traction sensing uses a viscous coupling to automatically transmit torque to the rear wheels when the front wheels slip, for optimal traction and safety. It's a system that's not available on GM's APVs. Advantage: Chrysler-Plymouth.

All body panels, except roof, are two-side galvanized/galvannealed, then five layers of primer, paint and clear acrylic coatings create a beautiful corrosion-resistant mirror finish.

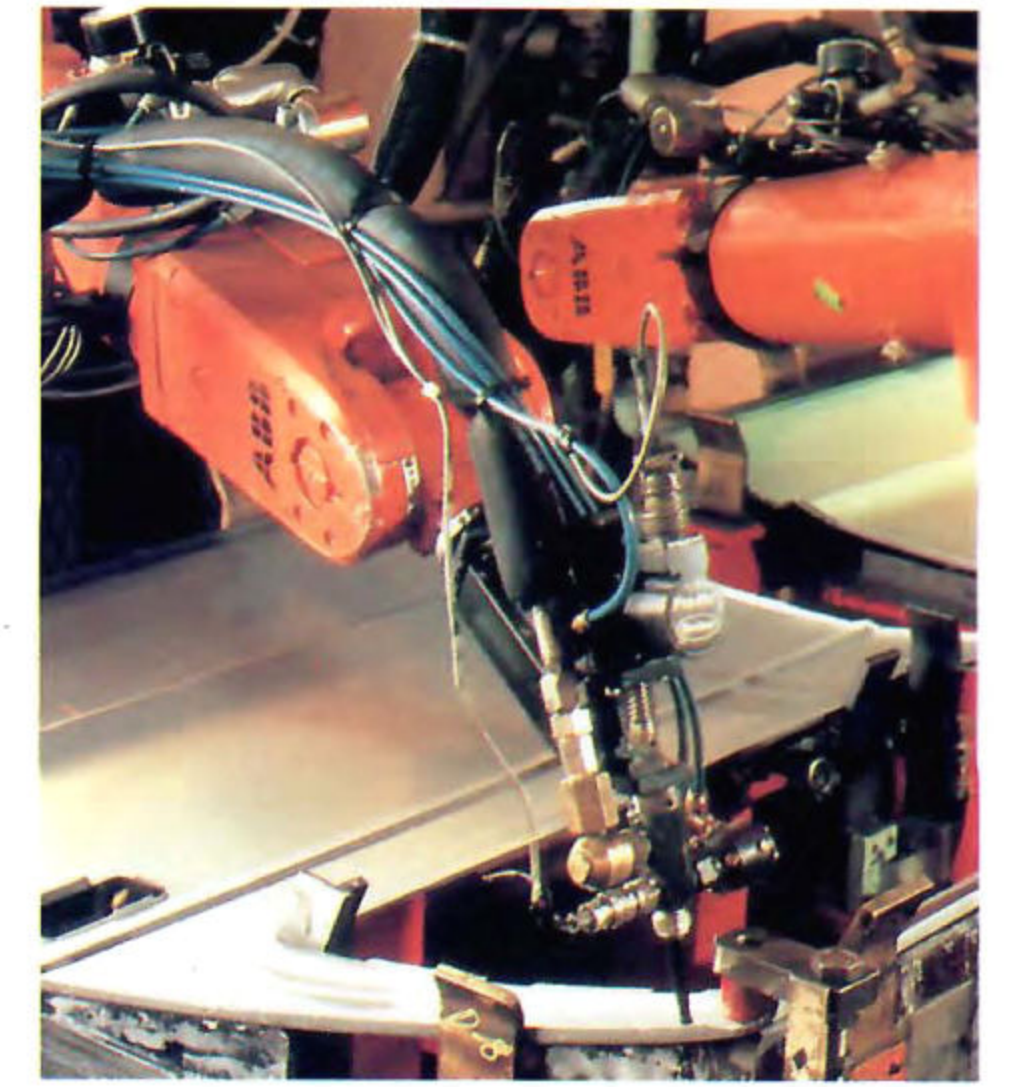

A clear, commanding driver's-eye view is offered by Plymouth Voyager's and Chrysler Town & Country's greenhouse design. Windshield pillars have been placed for maximum visibility, unlike GM's APVs.

Kinematic Modeling is a sophisticated computer analysis of the human body's interaction with the inside of a vehicle during accident impact. These studies result in safer interiors and fewer injuries.

Powerful epoxy adhesive is applied by a robotic arm. A continuous bead bonds vehicle door frames to their outer skins. The door is heat cured, then fully hardened in the ovens during the paint-drying process. Benefits include structural strength, superior corrosion resistance, and noise reduction.

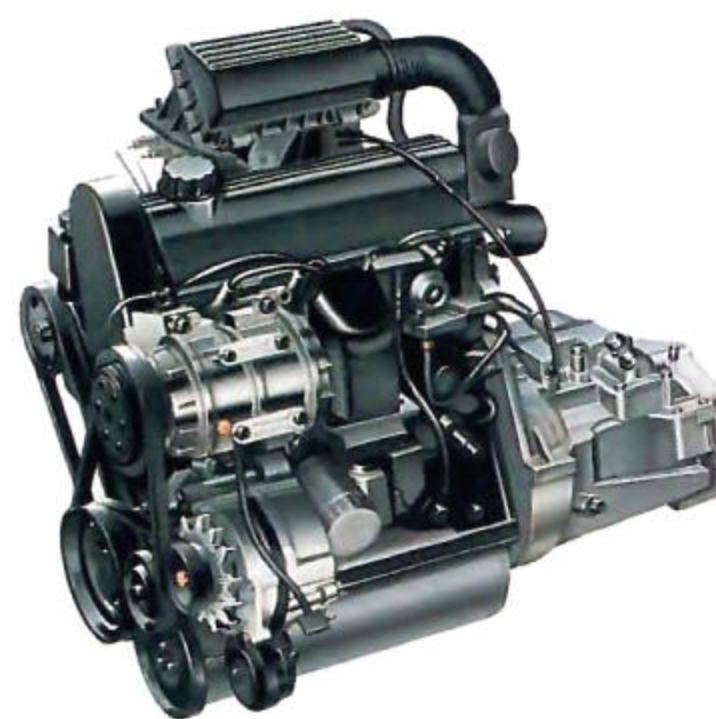

New Mopar Diagnostic Service System, designed in cooperation with IBM, offers Chrysler-Plymouth dealership customers the most advanced vehicle service ever. The hand-held unit pictured above records actual on-road performance. A removable data cartridge is then read by the host system to quickly diagnose any problem and maintain peak performance.
